The new application's "Slim" interface is Raketu's Lite version of Raketu's full-featured LaunchPad Desktop application, which also integrates IPTV streamed video and video on demand (VOD) entertainment content. Raketu Lite is available for Windows XP and Vista users, and offers free and/or extremely low cost VoIP calling from a desktop PC. Mac users and users of other Operating Systems can make calls using Raketu's website...

This is proprietary, i.e. calls are tied to one operator. However, like Voipcheap, it includes 'free' minutes. It seems, unless I have misunderstood this, that it is better than voipcheap in that the minutes are allotted per month rather than per 7 days (which must be very difficult to keep track of). 1200 minutes/month. Further, it appears that this lasts for 3 months from the date of crediting your account.

Credit is ~£5 or ~£12.50 denominations.

The chargeable call charges don't seem bad. UK calls @ 0.51p/min after free calls have been used up. Calls to UK mobiles 7.64p/min.

This is SIP but I haven't currently found the appropriate settings for hardware use.
